2012 Serial Keys. Executives say clients have to come first in a year of cutting costs and layoffs Corporate America, gearing up to deploy $1.7 trillion in stimulus money, is setting the stage for a massive wave of cuts as it faces the question of whether to rescue failing companies. Executives at financial institutions said their clients have to come first in a year of cutting costs and job cuts. Bank of America Corp. Chief Executive Officer Ken Lewis hinted Thursday that the company will cut 5,000 jobs.
The company trimmed 5,500 staff last year and 5,000 in 2007. Citigroup Inc. said earlier this week that it would cut about 6,000 jobs and that it would take a $1.7 billion charge for the cuts. "All too often we have seen the thrifts and banks be headed toward a 'do nothing' option," said Stanley O'Neal, who retired last month as chief executive of Merrill Lynch. "It's a tougher environment to be in, because if you don't
